

Elijah Martinez

Elijan is the Asylum Program Director at the non-profit Albuquerque FaithWorks. The organization provides assistance to refugees and asylum seekers residing in Albuquerque, New Mexico. Their mission is to be a proactive interfaith community which leverages shared resources in support of asylum seekers and people who are unhoused, or at the risk of becoming so.

Elijah's background is broad, having worked in education, for political campaigns, and digital outreach programs. He graduated from UNM summa cum laude in 2019. Elijah brings both his experiences as well as the perspective of a young, hispanic professional with a STEM background to everything he does.
